Welcome to New York – one of the most dynamic and cosmopolitan cities in the world. I am so pleased that you are joining us here for the 36th IAGA International Gaming Summit.

As the gaming industry's premier event that brings together leaders from all sectors of the industry, our Summit provides its delegates with an unparalleled opportunity to meet and discuss the top issues and challenges facing the gaming industry today. Our compelling panel and roundtable discussions combined with our unmatched networking events allows for exceptional learning opportunities with relaxed interactions with your global colleagues, giving you the ability to expand your critical knowledge while growing your global relationships. This magic combination is why our annual Summit continues to be the "must attend" event for so many industry executives.

Taking advantage of our New York location, this year's program focuses on many of the top issues facing our industry, highlighting key topics that cross jurisdictional boundaries and demand the attention of gaming executives worldwide. With topics ranging from eSports and skill-based games, to how gaming industry projects of all shapes and sizes are funded, to the intersection of player data and privacy protections, our Summit agenda reflects the critical issues facing global gaming today. It is the result of the hard work of our dedicated Conference Planning Committee, and I hope you'll join me in thanking them for their efforts as I believe this year's agenda is one of our best yet.

I'd also like you to join me in thanking our Responsible Gaming Forum Committee and Gaming Laboratories International (GLI) for their efforts in planning our two one-day workshops. These focused workshops exemplify how IAGA and our Summit are continually evolving to provide dynamic thought leadership to the gaming industry by partnering with a wide range of individuals, companies and organizations, and I am proud to have these two key events kick off this year's Summit.

As the gaming industry becomes more diverse and embraces new technologies and ways to play, having up-to-date information about key issues and forming and maintaining global relationships becomes more and more important, and IAGA is committed to providing an ongoing forum for both. I encourage you to take advantage of everything IAGA offers and be more involved in our ongoing initiatives, as we couldn't do this without the involvement of our members or the ongoing financial support of our generous sponsors. If you'd like to get more involved, please reach out to me, my fellow officers, or our Executive Director Kirsten Clark and join us in our efforts to expand our reach through future IAGA events around the globe.

I hope you enjoy your time in New York and at the conclusion of our Summit feel that your time here was well spent. I look forward to seeing you at our next IAGA event!

Sincerely,

Michael Cohen, IAGA President

ABOUT IAGA

Originally established as the National Association of Gaming Attorneys (NAGA), IAGA was founded in 1980 in Nevada by several notable gaming attorneys to create an association that would “unite in common organization those professionally engaged in the gaming industry, to facilitate negotiations in the gaming industry and protect and promote the mutual interests of the corporation’s members and to promote and encourage education in the gaming industry.”

The association soon drew the attention of gaming attorneys beyond Nevada who likewise wanted to support a forum where industry legal issues could be addressed, and NAGA’s membership quickly grew to include attorneys not only from the United States but also from the United Kingdom, France and other international areas where gaming was legally regulated. As a result, and to recognize the organization’s growing international membership, in 1985 NAGA evolved into the International Association of Gaming Attorneys (IAGA) and held its first international conference in Monte Carlo.

As the organization’s annual conferences expanded beyond Europe to Australia, Canada and the Caribbean, reflecting the globalization of the gaming industry and the increased international representation of its membership, the issues and strategies considered by IAGA began to require more than just legal expertise. As such, the organization’s educational and networking events actively began including professionals from the gaming industry’s financial and operational segments. And, to better reflect the expanded focus of the topics being addressed, in 2007 IAGA’s name was changed to the International Association of Gaming Advisors, and its membership has since expanded to include not just gaming attorneys, but a wide range of industry financial experts, casino executives, regulators, consultants and educators from around the world.

Together, the industry experts that make up IAGA today meet throughout the year to discuss the key issues affecting global gaming. The organization and its members also actively participate in a wide range of activities focused on expanding the expertise and professionalism of the gaming industry, and encourage ongoing collaboration between the industry’s legal, finance, operational, educational and regulatory advisors. As such, our members are regularly engaged in shaping the future of the industry and, through our conferences and collaborative opportunities, all members gain access to the collective heartbeat of the business.

TUESDAY, MAY 30

9 - 9:05 a.m. Welcome Address & Opening Remarks
Michael Cohen, IAGA President

9:05 - 9:30 a.m. Keynote - Responsible Gambling: Modern Society Lays Down the Gauntlet

With so many different types of gambling activities available around the world, gambling's impact on society and individual players is constantly subject to intense scrutiny. Nowhere is this more true than in Great Britain, where the country's extensive gambling options are under constant evaluation to ensure proper protections are in place to safeguard the nation's citizens.

As Executive Director for the British Gambling Commission, Tim Miller is at the forefront of the Commission's efforts to both ensure that proper measures are in place to protect individual players while encouraging the gambling industry to be more responsive to the needs of its consumers. During his keynote, he will touch on critical questions related to these efforts, including whether gambling's place in society is at risk due to the high scrutiny it faces, and whether there is a difference between creating responsible gamblers or providing responsible gambling. He will also discuss why it is important for companies to implement effective responsible gambling initiatives and measure their effectiveness.

Tim Miller

Tim Miller is Executive Director at the Gambling Commission, the statutory regulator for gambling in Great Britain. He joined the Commission in August 2016 building on over 15 years of experience across the regulatory and public sector. Tim was previously Head of Policy and Communications at the Local Government Ombudsman and prior to that was Head of Public Affairs at the Parliamentary and Health Service Ombudsman.

These roles followed ten years with the Law Society of England and Wales in a variety of regulatory posts. Tim is Vice Chair of Coventry Citizens Advice, one of the largest CABs in the country. He is also founding Chair of the Central Schools Trust, a multi-academy trust that runs several primary schools across Solihull.

GAMBLING COMMISSION

The Gambling Commission was set up under the Gambling Act 2005 to regulate commercial gambling in Great Britain in partnership with licensing authorities. We also regulate the National Lottery under the National Lottery etc. Act 1993.

9:30 - 10:30 a.m. The Responsible Gaming Consequences of New Technology and Ways to Play

A hot topic being discussed within the global gaming industry is the issue of attracting millennials / Generation Y players. Manufacturers like IGT and Aristocrat are developing new products using virtual reality, 4-dimensional games and other high-tech offerings to attract this "next generation" of players. The growth of skill-based and social games and other unique types of gaming including fantasy sports that appeal to new players raises new challenges with respect to educating consumers on "responsible" ways to play. And, with the rapid growth in convenience payment methods like debit / credit cards and eWallets available on mobile phones, is there a way to utilize this technology and provide a safety net for vulnerable players?

What, if any, are the responsible gambling consequences of this shift to new technologies? Can the gaming industry and counselors / therapists do what they do now or does a paradigm shift in the product also require a shift in how we approach responsible gambling? How do algorithm-based online behavioral tracking and responsible gaming programs and innovations like Massachusetts' PlayMyWay factor into the discussion?

Moderator: Connie Jones, Director, Association of Gaming Equipment Manufacturers (AGEM)

Panel: Stephen Crosby, Chairman, Massachusetts Gaming Commission

Nadine Grinblat, Chief Executive, Australasian Gaming Council

Omer Sattar, Co-Founder and Executive Vice President, Strategic Initiatives, Sightline Payments

David Trunkfield, Partner and Global Gaming Practice Leader, PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP

10:30 - 11 a.m. The Latest in Responsible Gambling Research and the Debate Surrounding Research Funding: Part 1, Research Roundtable

Problem and responsible gambling is a constant focus of ongoing research worldwide, and the international gaming industry is fortunate to have a wide range of universities and private and public institutions laser-focused on better understanding its impact on both the individual and the industry. This panel will explore some of the current research initiatives underway, provide insight into further areas for study and share their thoughts on what more needs to be done.

Moderator: Dr. Brett Abarbanel, Ph.D., Director of Research, International Gaming Institute, University of Nevada, Las Vegas (UNLV)

Panel: Kahlil Philander, Assistant Professor, Washington State University Carson College of Business

Russell Sanna, Ph.D., Executive Director, National Center for Responsible Gaming (NCRG)

11 - 11:30 a.m. The Latest in Responsible Gambling Research and the Debate Surrounding Research Funding: Part 2, Funding Challenges

Critical to any research initiative is proper, adequate funding, and with numerous stigmas surrounding gambling activities, obtaining sufficient, ongoing funding is a continual challenge faced globally. In the US and Canada, research funds are often set aside via tax levies but are constantly susceptible to reductions when budget shortfalls occur in other areas considered more critical; in Australia, any problem gambling research funded by the industry is automatically and unfairly considered tainted by the source of funds; in the UK, research is often funded by charities that often face fewer conflicts than governments but often suffer similar criticisms of bias.

With a growing need for insightful problem gambling research, what can the industry do to ensure ongoing research is properly funded? What are the advantages and disadvantages of public versus private funding? How can the industry pre-empt accusations of research bias? The panel will discuss these issues and more.

12 -1 p.m. Responsible Gaming Initiatives and Issues Around the World

With recent market studies estimating that the global casino market will expand at a compounded annual growth rate of 10% over the next five years, the importance of responsive, effective responsible gaming services is paramount for gaming jurisdictions. Featuring responsible gambling experts from markets around the world, our working lunch roundtable participants will discuss the state of responsible gaming in their respective regions and share their thoughts on global responsible gaming issues, challenges and opportunities for cooperation.

Incentivizing the Gaming Industry to Engage with the Problem Gambling Community

Often the non-profit PG organizations seem to forget that they are appealing to 'for profit' organizations for support. Is it wrong for these companies to ask, "What's in it for me?" Gaming companies and the industry in general are the media 'bad boys' and far too often their efforts to support problem gambling organizations go unrecognized. Some jurisdictions avoid including the gambling industry in strategies to minimize problem gambling due to the perception of "the fox watching the hen house," but who has a greater interest in preserving their markets for the future if not the gaming industry?

Moderator: Keith Whyte, Executive Director, National Council on Problem Gambling (NCPG)

2:30 - 3:30 p.m.

Moving Beyond Compliance-Based Responsible Gaming Programs / Designing Responsible Gaming Programs

What are new approaches and opportunities for the global gaming industry and its advocates to move forward and lead the discussion on responsible gaming rather than waiting for regulators or legislators to come up with something? Should companies have a dedicated responsible gambling team or is it better to have responsible gambling embedded in the organization as a whole? During this session, participants will break into individual groups and make their case for or against the approach.

Moderator: Elizabeth Cronan, Senior Director of Gaming Policy, American Gaming Association (AGA)

Panel: Maria Christina Annaloro, Las Vegas Sands

Alan Feldman, Executive Vice President of Global Industry Affairs, MGM Resorts International

Connie Jones, Director, Association of Gaming Equipment Manufacturers (AGEM)

Laura McAllister Cox, Vice President of Compliance, Rush Street Gaming

3:30 - 4:30 p.m.

The Importance of Proactive Responsible Gaming Employee Training and Awareness

Some jurisdictions have a mandatory requirement that employees of operators receive training in responsible gambling. Who makes the decision as to what that training should entail? Is the gaming regulator best qualified to be approving the content and delivery methods of such training or should that responsibility be with professionals in the field of education? Can a one-size-fits all approach to responsible gaming training be used for all types of gambling or are the requirements of casinos different from sports betting? Similarly, can online gaming and bricks and mortar gaming use the same training materials? And, what is the training responsibility of gaming technology providers, given that they manufacture so many of the products that are pointed to as being the root of problem gambling?

11:30 a.m. - 12:30 p.m. Modernizing the Delivery Channels for Gaming Content
 Over the past four decades policy makers have devised a robust system of gaming regulations to protect consumers and to create a revenue stream from gaming activity that benefits the public interest. Regulators are now confronted with the next generation of gaming technology, which is often described as a "new type" of game or a "hybrid", requiring new rules and statutory changes. However, a deeper dive reveals that most of the games share characteristics that are similar to games that have already been approved and existing game approval processes, rather than massive rule overhauls or statutory changes, provide the best policy solution to ensuring the integrity of the games.

In addition, the introduction of new online gaming channels presents challenges to both traditional land-based operators and regulators. While gaming operators have spent countless amounts to build compliance programs and dedicated large percentages of gaming revenue to public causes, we are now seeing an increasing amount of gaming activity that occurs outside the regulatory structure. Policy makers are struggling to determine how to integrate a variety of online gaming-related products into existing regulatory systems while protecting the land-based development, jobs and public revenue generated by the traditional gaming industry. This panel will explore how traditional land-based operators can enhance their investment and how policy makers and regulators may be shifting their focus to protect critical revenue streams.

12:30 - 1:30 p.m. Box Lunch Provided by IAGA

1:30 - 2:30 p.m. Regulatory Jurisdiction & the Fight Against Illegal Gaming

Since the expansion of regional gaming markets nearly three decades ago, 48 states have authorized some form of gaming and established a robust system of regulation to govern it. Yet despite this extensive regulatory oversight and the revenue and other public benefits it produces, there is substantial evidence that illegal gaming continues to thrive. Gaming parlors in private clubs and charitable organizations, slots at trucks stops, illegal sports betting, skill gaming parlors and ubiquitous online gaming opportunities are alive and well in the USA. Some suggest this is due to the lack of adequate law enforcement resources. However, it may be that it is a simple matter of expanding the jurisdiction of regulators to allow them to protect the state's interest in being the exclusive authorization body for gambling activity. This panel will explore the state's role in reigning in illegal behavior and protecting its interest in ensuring the integrity of all gaming activity within its borders.

2:30 - 3:30 p.m. Emerging Technology in Regulated Markets

Game approval standards and procedures vary dramatically around the globe. The result is that technological advancement in some jurisdictions is driven as much by regulatory processes as it is market demand. This panel will explore the introduction of emerging technology in gaming markets and the factors that are impacting innovation.

INTERNATIONAL GAMING SUMMIT

The IAGA International Gaming Summit is the gaming industry's premier event that brings together leaders from all global gaming sectors. It provides an unparalleled opportunity to meet and discuss the top issues and challenges facing gaming today while simultaneously providing them with an excellent opportunity to network and deepen their relationships with their global industry colleagues.

Putting together a comprehensive two-day agenda focused on critical issues facing the global gaming industry is no small task, and this year's International Gaming Summit agenda reflects the hard work and commitment of a planning committee that includes representation from all over the world. We are extremely thankful for the committee's efforts not only in preparing a thought-provoking and extensive agenda but also for their efforts in sourcing each session's topic experts.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 31

9 - 9:15 a.m.

Welcome Address & Opening Remarks

Michael Cohen, IAGA President & Senior Vice President - Corporate Development, General Counsel & Corporate Secretary, Caesars Acquisition Company

9:15 - 9:45 a.m.

Keynote - Just What is Gaming, Anyway? A Fireside Chat.

From its humble start driven by small casinos offering relying solely on gambling revenues, and giving away free drinks, rooms and meals, the gaming industry has reshaped itself into a dynamic international industry where revenues are earned from everything from standard casino offerings to online gambling, to world-class entertainment, restaurants and clubs, and even "play for fun" social games and e-Sports.

With so many different consumer options offered by global gaming companies, the definition of "gaming" is constantly changing and being redefined by cutting-edge advancements. Drawing on the wealth of experience gleaned during his 20+ year career in the gaming industry, Mitch Garber, CEO of Caesars Acquisition Company and Chairman of Cirque du Soleil, will share his insights into how Caesars leveraged its brand and shared assets to evolve from a traditional bricks and mortar casino company into a multi-faceted entertainment-focused business where the key revenue generators are entertainment and restaurants, not gaming. He will also share his thoughts on why the right answer is to avoid certain emerging offerings like daily fantasy sports and give his thoughts on what the future holds for gaming.

Mitch Garber

Mitch Garber is currently the CEO of Caesars Acquisition Company, the owner of six casino resort properties in Las Vegas, New Orleans and Baltimore as well as the World Series of Poker. He was one of the founding investors of Caesars Interactive Entertainment which announced the sale of its social games assets to a Chinese consortium including Giant Interactive and Alibaba founder Jack Ma in July of 2016 for approximately $4.4 billion USD. He is also currently the Chairman and a minority shareholder in Cirque Du Soleil following the TPG/Fosun-led buyout in 2015 in which he participated. Mr. Garber has successfully led companies on the NASDAQ, Toronto and London stock exchanges as well as private companies controlled by private equity firms TPG and Apollo. He was formerly a Dragon on the business tv show Dans l'œil Du Dragon and is Co-President of the 2016 Centraide campaign. He has been a member of IAGA since 1993/94.

Caesars Acquisition Company was formed to make an equity investment in Caesars Growth Partners, LLC (CGP), a joint venture between CAC and Caesars Entertainment Corporation (NASDAQ: CZR), the world's most diversified casino entertainment provider and the most geographically diverse U.S. casino-entertainment company. CAC is CGP's managing member and sole holder of all of its outstanding voting units.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 31

9:45 - 10:45 a.m. Cashing in on Call of Duty - Is there a way to monetize eSports?

Gambling on video games has grown unexpectedly and exponentially in the last three years. International video game tournaments have increased the visibility of eSports, as well as increased the opportunities for wagering not only on the winners of these tournaments, but on events that occur within the game. With the crackdown on illegal unregulated in-game and "skin" wagering, operators are now looking for ways to tap into the public desire to gamble on eSports. This panel will explore the opportunities and challenges inherent in monetizing this global phenomenon.

Moderator: Arlo Devlin-Brown, Partner, Covington & Burling LLP

Panel: Dr. Brett Abarbanel, Ph.D., Director of Research, International Gaming Institute, University of Nevada, Las Vegas (UNLV)
Melissa Blau, Founder, iGaming Capital
Ryan Morrison, Founding Partner, Morrison & Lee
Ian Smith, Integrity Commissioner, Esport Integrity Coalition (UK)

10:45 - 11:45 a.m. Where the Money Comes From: a Roundtable Review of How Gaming Industry Projects are Funded

Thanks to a wealth of new technologies and ways and places to play, the global gaming industry is constantly growing and evolving. With so much forward momentum, just how do new projects get the funding they need to successfully break into a highly competitive and diverse industry? Our blend of panelists represent the waterfront of capital structure and styles and will provide insight into what they look for when considering funding global gaming and hospitality industry projects. The topics they'll address include providing a current view on the capital deployment sector across various funding styles, public versus private equity valuation trends, what debt/equity structure and credit pricing looks like for new casino resort development projects, M&A financing and what public and private deal flows look like today.

Moderator: Bill Lerner, Managing Director - Head of Investment Banking, Union Gaming

Panel: David Edwards, Projects Chief Executive - Special Projects Unit, Department of State Development, Queensland Government, Australia
Mustafa Humayun, Managing Director, Sagard Capital
Mark Schwartz, Managing Director, Och-Ziff

11:45 a.m. - 12:15 p.m. Networking Lunch Followed By Working Lunch Breakout Sessions

12:15 - 1:15 p.m. Breakout Session 1: The Highs and Lows of Marijuana Legalization

With the growing legalization of marijuana for medical, retail and recreational use, an increasing number of gaming jurisdictions are having to confront a wide range of related compliance, employment and ethical issues. In states like Nevada, marijuana legalization has created a federal versus state law issue, as the Nevada Gaming Control Board won't license individuals who run medical marijuana dispensaries because even though it's now legal in Nevada, it's still illegal under Federal law. And, questions like "can you not hire someone who tests positive for marijuana use when it's legal?" continue to be raised. This panel will explore these issues and more.

Moderator: Sean McGuinness, Partner, Lewis Roca Rothgerber Christie

Panel: William Bogot, Attorney, Fox Rothschild
Barbara Brohl, Executive Director, Colorado Department of Revenue
Terry Johnson, Board Member, Nevada Gaming Control Board
Anthony Pearl, General Counsel, Cosmopolitan

12:15 - 1:15 p.m. Breakout Session 2: Just what does it take to launch a start-up technology company?

What are the unique regulatory issues of advising a startup technology company in the gaming industry? Given the growing intersection of technology and gaming, there are unique issues a tech startup company faces with regards to gaming licensing, especially when dealing with venture capital investors and angel investors who are accustomed to playing active roles in such startups but who need to balance those roles to be licensed. Our panel will review some of the challenges start-up companies can face as well as discuss how to implement an appropriate compliance program for such startups.

Moderator: Frank DiGiacomo, Partner, Duane Morris

Panel: Tom Auremma, Compliance Committee Member, Penn National
Blaine Graboyes, CEO, GameCo
Kent Young, CEO, Spin Games

12:15 - 1:15 p.m. Breakout Session 3: The Latest in Regulation of Online Skill Games and Online Sports Manager Games in the US and EU

This panel will discuss new regulatory approaches concerning online skill games in several US and EU states. In particular with recent regulations enacted in Malta and Germany indicating that daily fantasy sports will be subjected to existing online skill-based game regulations that are in place to protect the player, what does the future hold for these new ways to wager? This panel will discuss the recently enacted Maltese Skill Games Regulation of 24 January 2017, the EU E-Commerce directive and how other efforts in these areas could impact online sports manager games throughout Europe.

Moderator: Justin Franssen, Partner & Head of Gaming Practice Group, Kalf Katz & Franssen

Panel: Dr. Joseph Borg, Senior Advisor, WH Partners

Jeffery Haas, CIO, DraftKings
Dr. Wulf Hambach, Partner, Hambach & Hambach
Dr. Edwina Licari, Chief Officer - Legal and EU / International Affairs, Malta Gaming Authority

1:15 - 2:15 p.m.

The Impact of Negative Media Coverage on Global Gaming:
A Roundtable Assessment coordinated by Global Gaming Women

"Pataki: Online gambling will fuel terrorism, organized crime." "Casino-linked crime up 19 pct in 2016: Macau police." "New ISIS Video Includes Las Vegas Strip Footage." "How Casinos Enable Gambling Addicts." With headlines like these appearing around the world in mainstream media, how does the gaming industry work together to address misleading public perceptions about gambling in all its forms? With extensive industry multi-jurisdictional efforts focused on anti-money laundering safeguards, responsible gaming, and operator social responsibility, is there more that could be done to advocate for the benefits the industry provides to its surrounding communities? Featuring an impressive lineup of industry notables, this panel will share their thoughts on these issues and more.

Moderator: Angela Pruitt, Senior Executive, Sitrick and Company

Panel: Jack Horner, President, HornerCom

Katie Lever, General Counsel & Executive Vice President, BahaMar

Sharon Cohen Levin, Partner, WilmerHale

Quirino Mancini, Partner and Global Head of Gaming & Gambling Practice, Tonucci & Partners

Sara Slane, Senior Vice President of Public Affairs, American Gaming Association

2:15 - 3:15 p.m.

Sports Betting: Time to Play the Trump Card?

"The United States' approach to sports betting lags behind Europe and other countries that effectively regulate a legal market. Today, at least $150 billion a year is wagered illegally on sports betting in the United States" - according to a memo sent by the American Gaming Association to President Trump's transition team in support of its call for repeal of the federal sports betting prohibition imposed by the Professional and Amateur Sports Protection Act of 1992. With an existing legal challenge to that legislation by New Jersey and another rumored from New York, is such a repeal now on the horizon? This panel will provide delegates with an update on this key issue and explain the manner in which concerns about sports betting integrity, accountability and strong consumer protections have been addressed in other jurisdictions and what remain or, have become, the greatest threats insofar as maintenance of such regulatory standards is concerned.

Lying, Cheating and Stealing - When What Happens in Vegas Doesn't Stay in Vegas. An Ethical Guide for Gaming Lawyers.

In both the gaming and legal profession, cheating and stealing are ethically and legally wrong. But what about lying? Is there a difference between the gaming world and the legal world concerning lying? For example, in poker, lying or bluffing is a highly admired skill. But can lawyers lie or bluff? What do the ethics rules say about that? Are the rules different in different jurisdictions? Do the rules change if it is a private business negotiation or a negotiation with governmental or regulatory officials? This presentation will explore the ethical issues regarding honesty when a lawyer is required to represent a client zealously and required to follow the ethical conduct rules.

Keynote - "In the future, which is now, everyone will have 15 minutes of shame."

At laser speed, cyber-attacks destroy reputations, brands, businesses . . . even lives. They disrupt operations, staff moral and value. All of us—every CEO, celebrity, business executive, entrepreneur, physician, lawyer, journalist, educator, politician, parent and child -- are at risk of digital assassination. And those in the gaming industry are no exception.

Richard Torrenzano is a sought-after expert and leading commentator on crisis, brands, reputation and social media. www.torrenzano.com. He co-authored the game changing, bestselling, award-winning book, Digital Assassination: Protecting Your Reputation, Brand, or Business Against Online Attacks, published by St. Martin's Press-Macmillan. His keynote will reveal how the Internet is used to destroy brands, reputations, even lives. He exposes strategies digital assassins deploy and defines ways to turn the tables on their deception. And, he will explain what is happening on the Internet, why it is happening and what actions you need to protect your brand, company and good name.

Richard Torrenzano

Richard Torrenzano is chief executive of The Torrenzano Group, a reputation and high-stakes issues management firm specializing in building and protecting corporate reputations, helping clients grow their business and enhance brand and shareholder value. Breakout Session 2: Redefining the Casino Floor - the Impact and Potential of Skill-based Games

Walk around an Atlantic City slot floor today, and you just might see an array of new machines offering everything from puzzle-based games to titles you might be more accustomed to seeing in a video game arcade. Targeting millennials, these machines offer variable payouts allowing more skilled players a higher chance to win. With California and Nevada beginning to offer these new products as well, and other jurisdictions close behind, what does this mean for traditional slot-based content where players all have the same chance to win over time? And, does this shift in game development focus mean that we could see similar changes in other traditional gaming types as well? The panel will discuss these issues and more.

Breakout Session 3: The Changing Ways We Can Pay to Play

The coming together of various casino systems that allow players to pay for entertainment and resort services in whatever form they prefer is radically shifting the way global gaming operators can approach financial transactions. This shift in technological capabilities, along with a favorable shift in both regulatory and network environments, has the potential to revolutionize the "money" side of the business with game-changing efficiencies, tighter controls and higher player visibility. This diverse panel will discuss the ups and downs of these advancements while considering the impact they're having on bricks and mortar casinos in particular.

Social Responsibility, Consumer Focus and the Future Success of the International Gambling Industry

In today's rapidly expanding global gaming industry, how does enhanced social responsibility and heightened consumer focus impact gambling revenues and their long term sustainability? Do consumers have trust and confidence in the industry's ability to provide a gambling experience enhanced by modern safeguards that protect "at risk" players, or are their perceptions unfairly shaped by negative stories, relating to problem gambling, misleading advertising and unfair treatment of consumers and the like? And, what can the industry do proactively to demonstrate its commitment to implementing a wide range of initiatives and technologies designed to secure public and legislative confidence while supporting industry growth and profitability? This panel will explore what is currently being done across the gaming social responsibility spectrum, paying particular attention to advancements in jurisdictions like the United Kingdom while considering the lessons to be learned from the automotive, alcohol and tobacco industries.

Moderator: John Hagan, Partner, Harris Hagan and Deputy Chairman, GamCare
Panel: Jan Jones Blackhurst, Executive Vice President-Public Policy & Corporate Responsibility, Caesars Entertainment
Alan Feldman, Executive Vice President of Global Industry Affairs, MGM Resorts International
Nadine Grinblat, Chief Executive, Australasian Gaming Council
Tim Miller, Executive Director, UK Gambling Commission
